Refund of Duties—Work of Committees—Proposed Legislation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Robert J. Tracwell, the controller of the treasury, has rendered a decision involving the question of the refund of duties on goods imported from Porto Rico. The decision is given at the request of the secretary of the treasury, who asked as to his authority to refund money paid as duties, or as a fine equal to the duty, no protest having been filed against the assessment of those duties on certain merchandise brought into this country from Porto Rico, after the ratification of the treaty of peace with Spain and before the taking effect of the act of April 12, 1900. The controller holds in effect that where no protests have been filed, no duties can be refunded on goods imported from Porto Rico between April 12, 1900, and May 1, 1901, an application for refund of duties where no protests have been filed must be sent to the secretary of the treasury for certification to Congress for appropriation.

One of the House leaders, whose position gives him the fullest information as to the outlook of the treasury, has said that the programme for considering the war revenue reduction bill is fully understood, but it is not desired to give those who oppose the majority the fullest information as to the exact time of its consideration in order to assist their opposition. One thing has been settled beyond any doubt, that the bill will be passed exactly as reported, except in minor details, and that the length of the debate will be about two days, which seems about reasonable, as there is no good reason for prolonging it to when the debate will begin, it will hardly be next week, as some thirty Republican members will be absent from the city after Lincoln's birthday. So that it will not be taken until after the 15th, a full public attendance, when it will be passed.

PRESENT FOR CARNEGIE

PORTION OF THE FIRST RAIL IN-CLOSED IN A SILVER BOX.

Delivery of the Carnegie Laboratory of Engineering to the Stevens Institute of Technology.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Andrew Carnegie today formally presented to the Stevens Institute of Technology, at Hoboken, N. J., the new building erected at his expense and known as the "Carnegie Laboratory of Engineering." The ceremonies consisted of the delivery of the keys of the building to Mr. Carnegie by the architects and the handing of these keys by Mr. Carnegie to St. Bayard Dod, president of the board of trustees, a few appropriate words accompanying donation and acceptance.

Following this was the presentation to Mr. Carnegie by Dr. Henry Morton, president of the faculty, acting for the alumni association, of a beautiful decorated silver box containing a piece of the first "T" rail ever made. This piece is about two inches long and weighs 125 ounces. This rail was invented by R. L. Stevens and made in 1839 by Sir John Guest at his works in Wales, under the personal supervision of Mr. Stevens. It was with these rails that the Camden and Amboy Railroad was laid in 1831-2. The silver box is a work of art and was made by Tiffany. It shows on its face a picture of the first rail, and on the inside, between Camden, N. J., and Amboy, N. J. The train is preceded by a rider who signals its approach. Almost an exact counterpart of this "man on a horse leading a train" may be seen daily on West street, New York, where the New York Central freight train, coming from the river front in the lower part of the city and are preceded by a rider to warn truckmen and others of the train's approach.
